Nomination Process

Who is your Scout of the Year? The qualifications are clear but difficult. The purpose of the Boy Scouts of America is to help boys develop the leadership qualities that will carry them into adulthood with some well-rounded features of character, spiritual awareness, and skills. A more simplified summary is to live by the Scout Oath and Law. Who in your troop exemplifies the Scouting spirit?

Your committee chair or awards chair should appoint a committee of three to five adults who will interview and select your troop nomination. An older Scout may be on the committee but must not be a candidate.

Once you have made the selection, complete the nomination form on the back of this sheet, and submit it to the council by the deadline of Friday, January 10, 2014. No late nominations accepted. Do not attach extra sheets; they will not be considered.

Then What?

Put your troop Boy Scout of the Year Award nomination into action. This does not need to be an elaborate or time-consuming process, but can contain these types of simple elements:

- ◆ Recognition of the Boy Scout at a troop event
- ◆ A newspaper story with a picture about the Boy Scout in the local paper
- ◆ Involve the Boy Scout in the troop anniversary dinner, court of honor, or a presentation from the head of your charter organization.
- ◆ Be sure your candidate attends the Marin Council Recognition Dinner along with friends and family to support him

Council Selection Process

All nominees will be interviewed on Thursday, January 30, 2014, by a special panel of the Advancement and Recognition Committee. The panel will consider how the nominees reflect the ideals of Scouting and then make their choice out of all the nominees. The panel's choice will be honored at the annual Marin Council Recognition Dinner.
